

What Will It Take? - Advancing Vocational and Employment Opportunities for Persons with ASD

June 6 & 7, 2013 at Canada Olympic Park, Calgary

CONFERENCE SPEAKERS

Randy Lewis

As Senior Vice President of US-based Walgreens, Randy Lewis believes that people with disabilities can do more at work. His model has resulted in 10% of his organization's workforce comprising people with disabilities. This has changed the lives of people with disabilities, and is transforming the workplace.

Michelle Garcia Winner

Michelle Garcia Winner offers leading vocational skill development strategies in ASD, within adults' natural `learning` environment including the workplace.

Dr. Peter Gerhardt

Dr. Gerhardt is a dynamic leader in supporting youth and adults with ASD. He focuses on school-to-work transition, and meeting adults' needs and issues.

Mark Wafer

Mark Wafer is the owner of six Tim Hortons locations at which people with disabilities are employed in all areas from entry level to management. He co-founded a peer-based Rotary initiative in which 190 people with disabilities have found paid work.
